of a revolution, in the partial substitution of one scaple for another, and that is, that Chinese stagar came is hardier than Indian corn. Our information from various parts of the district of country recently visited by the frost, is to the effect that while the crop of Indian corn has been severely injured or almost entirely destroyed, the crop of Chinese argar came has suffered little or nothing front the same cause, and that for hog and cattle feeding purposes, it has suffered nothing at all. Our readers will recollect that at the general Sorghum Convention held in Rockford last December, the fact was certainly established, by the concurrons testimony of several intelligent and well-known sorghum cultivators, there was nothing like the juice of the sugar came. It was these awared, and the assumption vindicated by concurrent testimony of several intelligent and well-known sorghum cultivators, there was nothing like the juice of the sugar came. It was these awared, and the assumption vindicated by concurrent testimony, that two gallons of came juice were fully equal in fatiening properties to one bushel of corn, and that a good acre were fully equal in fatiening properties to one bushel of corn, and that a good acre of came would produce from eight hundred to one thousand gallons of fulce; and also that the pork produced from the came juice was even superior to that from the corn. If this fact can be further established—and we believe it—we see no reason to doubt that in a very few years Chinese sugar-cane and Indian corn will be produced in about equal quantities in the West—the former for sugar and syrup making and hog and cattle feeding, and the latter for man's consumption. There is a wide field opened for investigation here, and we want to see our Western Armers take hold of the matter of investigation here, and we want to see our Western Armers take hold of the matter of investigation here, and we want to see our was and the secretary opphis to our sumption. Thurlow Weed has written an article on "Current politics and the War," which Copperheads and disloyal men all over the country will do well to read, for though he is an ultra Conservative, he has told these bogus Conservatives many wholesome truths, which the War Democrats who have so honorably distinguished ings in various parts at the Union, will, we are sure, very gladly endorse. Mr. Weed sees clearly enough that the traitorous practises of the rebel sympathizers amongst the Democratic party are fast burrying it to rule and utter annihilation; that their enalaughts against the Administration do not burt it, but rebound upon themtion do not hurt it, but rebound upon themselves with a fearful energy of destruction, whilst for all other purposes they are, as he says, so much "waste thunder." He reminds the Democrats of Maine that when they nominated Mr. Bradbury, the Copperhead, for their Governor, he told them they were cuting their own throats; ahrewdly insisting for their guidance, that the atrocious principles of this man and those who supported him, must inevitably "run the Democratic party under; became no party, be its antecedents what they might, could during a war, be unfaithful to the country with impunity," adding "that the people unerringly find, and take the patriotic side, and that if the Administra-

Mr. Bradbury asked them if they would support the Na-tional Administration in the exercise of what he called "despotic power;" if "they would sacrifice their dearest rights and most sacred privileges;" and finally, whether they would "yield the noble guarantees affecting life, liberty and prop-erty." He got his answer through the bai-lot boxes, mys Mr. Weed. It was the same answer which patriotism returned to now he should have a remembrance in its success.

The Invalid corps is rapidly filling up its ranks. Discharged invalid soldiers, tired of insolivity and dependence upon the liberality of friends, are callsting in such numbers as to make it certain that able hodied soldiers, now doing guard and garrison duty throughout the country, will all soon be sent to the field and their places supplied by lavalids, who felting experienced soldiers and appreciating the interest manifested in them by the Gevernment, in providing for them henorable independence, will prove themselves valuable. Thus the invalid corps, properly called "the Corps of Honor," will be a permanent and notable feature of the humanity and wisdom of the Administration's conduct of the war.

The EDNEL FORCE.

The EDNEL STREET of the rebel army at and near Lafeyette is not known, but if is writing that the graph is received heavy reinforcements from some quarter within the past two weeks. Deserters say that two of Johnston's divisions have arrived, adding about 25,000 or 10,000 to the snemy's forces, which were known to conside herory of Folie's and Hackney's compa and Buckney's division of history, stoccher with Wheeler's cavary, forming lasts a total of about 55,000 mm. From this it is east to kny, as least 4,000 have deserted. For smooth conscripts have been picked up in Transsesse, Georgia, and Alisham to make the number still good, which, added to their reinforcements, would give them an army of, at least, 75,000. This is allowing their own figures to be correct, but it is not thus probable that the number of their reinforcements.
